Product description:

When we sat down to design the CUBE Agree C:62 Pro, we had one goal in mind: to set a new benchmark in the endurance race bike category. Riding long and hard on a bike that responds to your every whim is what it's all about. High tech carbon frame construction, incredible attention to detail and CUBE's fastidious in-house testing mean you can be assured of an exceptional ride. But this level of performance needn't break the bank. With brand new Shimano Ultegra components for slick shifting and powerful braking, a light and strong Mavic wheelset and a frame that's both incredibly stiff and surprisingly comfortable, pro level performance is now within any rider's reach.

The high tech carbon chassis at the heart of the Agree C:62 Pro represents the current state of the art in carbon fibre frame construction. As you'd expect from a race bike of this calibre, all the cables are routed internally for clean looks and long service life. In addition to the tapered head tube - which houses the comfortable, accurate and aerodynamic carbon fork - we've also equipped the C:62 Pro with an integrated seat clamp. It's just one of the small touches that adds to its efficiency in cutting through the wind. But aerodynamics don't count for much without power, which is why we've finessed the chain and seatstay design to provide an exceptional combination of pedalling efficiency with ride-all-day comfort. Add the PressFit bottom bracket and Di2 compatibility and you'll see that, whatever your race ambitions, we've got your back.
